John Lachs (1934) has been one of the most interesting American philosophers for nearly sixty years. His philosophical, educational, and public activity has been an attempt to show the relevance of philosophy to life. This is the first book dedicated to his thought. This collection of essays, written on four continents by scientists, philosophers, and humanists, was initially presented to Karl R. Popper on his sixtieth birthday as a token of critical admiration and in recognition of his work. But the volume also stands on its own as a remarkable series of statements utilizing Popper's critical vision in the study of philosophy, proper logic, mathematics, science as method and theory, and finally to the study of society and history. What is remarkable is that Popper worked in all of these areas, not in a cursory or discursive way, but with the utmost clarity and rigor. The core position of this volume and its contributors is that the progress of knowledge is not a linear accumulation of definitive acquisitions, but a zigzagging process in which counterexamples and unfavorable evidence ruin generalizations and prompt the invention of more comprehensive and sometimes deeper generalizations. To be criticized in their turn, a critical approach to problems, procedures, and results in every field of inquiry is therefore a necessary condition for the continuance of progress. The title of this volume, then, is in a sense an homage to Popper's critical rationalism and critical empiricism. The essays are a tribute to his unceasing and uncompromising quest, not for final certainty, but for closer truth and increased clarity. Among the contributors are outstanding figures in philosophy and the exact sciences in their own right, including Herbert Feigl, R. M. Hare, J. O. Wisdom, Nicholas Rescher, David Bohm, Paul K. Feyerabend, F. A. Hayek, and Adolf Grunbaum. Social science contributions include Hans Albert on social science and moral philosophy, W. B. Gallie on the critical philosophy of history, Pieter Geyl on the open society and its enemies, and George H. Nadel on the philosophy of history. Immanuel Kant's work changed the course of modern philosophy. In these essays, Karl Ameriks examines how he compares the philosophical system set out in Kant's critiques with the work of the major philosophers before and after him: Descartes, Berkeley, Hume, Reid, Jacobi, Reinhold, the early German Romantics, Hegel, Feuerbach, and Marx. A systematic introduction argues that complexities in the interpretation of Kant's system led to a new emphasis on history, subjectivity, and aesthetics. This emphasis defined a distinctive interpretive style of philosophizing that has become especially influential and fruitful once again in our own time. The individual essays provide case studies in support of the thesis that late 18th-century reactions to Kant initiated an historical turn, after which historical and systematic considerations became joined in a way that fundamentally distinguishes philosophy from science and art without falling back into mere historicism. In this way, it is shown that philosophy's historical turn is both similar to and unlike the turn to history undertaken by most other disciplines in this era. Part one argues that close attention to the historical context of Kant's philosophy is crucial to avoiding frequent misunderstandings that have arisen in comparing Kant with other major modern philosophers. Part two contends that it was mainly the writing of Kant's first major interpreter that led to special philosophical emphasis on history. In other major post-Kantian thinkers, part three argues that Hegel's system and its influence on post-Hegelians were determined largely by variations on Reinhold's historical turn. Part four engages with major contemporary philosophers who have combined a study of particular themes in Kant and German idealism with an appreciation for phenomena closely associated with the general notion of an historical turn in philosophy. This is the enlarged edition of a critical history of modern philosophy. In this new edition, Greek and medieval philosophies have been added. The book also includes a critical and comparative account of the major contributions of eight modern thinkers to this exposition. The idealism of Hegel and Bradley has been introduced. Recent discussions concerning Hume, Kant, Hegel, and Bradley have also been incorporated, whilst giving fully an analytic account of topics. The author maintains that philosophy is a holistic enterprise of man as we find it in Spinoza, Kant, Hegel, and Bradley. The book has turned out to be a reliable and useful text for the students of the subject throughout India. This thoroughly revised and enlarged edition will prove to be all the more serviceable in general. This book presents the first English translation of Alexander Baumgarten's Initia Philosophiae Practicae Primae, the textbook Kant used in his lectures on moral philosophy, originally published in Latin in 1760. The Initia contains a systematic but original version of the universal practical philosophy first articulated by Christian Wolff in his personal copy. Kant penned hundreds of pages of notes and sketches that document his relation to this earlier tradition, translating these extensive elucidations into English together with Kant's notes on the text. This translation offers a complete resource to Kant's reading of the Initia to facilitate further study. First-time translations of elucidatory passages from G. F. Meier and Wolff are also included alongside a German-English-Latin glossary. The translators' introduction provides a biography of Baumgarten, a discussion of the importance of the Initia, its relation to Wolff's and Meier's universal practical philosophy, and its role in Kant's lectures, by shedding new light on the arguments of Kant's mature works and offering insights into his pre-critical moral thought. Elements of first practical philosophy reveals why Baumgarten's work is essential for understanding the background to Kant's philosophy. Continental philosophy: a critical approach is a lucid and wide-ranging introduction to the key figures and philosophical movements of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. It includes chapters on Hegel, Marx, and Western Marxism, Schopenhauer, Freud, and Bergson, Nietzsche, Hermeneutics, Phenomenology, Existentialism, Structuralism, Poststructuralism, French Feminism, and Postmodernism. It provides an ideal text or background resource for many

levelling depersonalising and dehumanising effects in such an age the question arises of philosophy as critical reflective theory about the world man s position and purpose in the world and the relationship between philosophy and man as a free individual this book makes an attempt to give an answer to this question it has been written from great concern as to the future destiny of mankind in the light of various contemporary attempts at the abolition of philosophy and at merging it in practice as this practice is seen by the respective thinker or school of thought this work may be seen as representing an answer to such attempts as they are made for instance by the advocates of linguistic analysis or by representatives of the so called frankfurt school respectively by an analysis of western thought in general with emphasis on the present the author of this book seeks to show that the abdication of philosophy as critical reflective theory leads to the abdication of man as a critical reflective individual one that is free to dissent and to say no to the system man is perverted and alienated from his true nature he is forced to conform and to lead an unauthentic existence within the system in their final collaborative work deleuze and guattari set out to address the question what is philosophy their answer is simple enough philosophy is the art of forming inventing and fabricating concepts in this book jeffrey a bell explores what that involves crucial to deleuze and guattari s understanding of this task bell argues is the assumption that philosophy is integral to a life well lived bell shows that a concept of learning is created through the course of the text composed of three inseparable components philosophy science and art ultimately what is philosophy can be his critique of ethnophilosophy as a colonial exoticising and racialized undertaking provoked contentious debates among african intellectuals on the proper methods and scope of philosophy and science in an african and global context since the 1970s his radical pledge for scientific autonomy from the global system of knowledge production made him turn to endogenous forms of practising science in academia the horizon of his philosophy is the quest for critical universality from a historical and situated perspective finally his call for a notion of culture that is antithetical to political movements focused on a single identitarian doctrine or exclusionary norms shows how timely his political thought remains to this day this book gives a comprehensive overview of hountondji s edition of this little work which now bears the more appropriate title an outline of philosophy has led me to attempt to make it somewhat more worthy of the favour with which it has been received knowing well how incomplete is the treatment of the various problems with which it deals my first impulse was to re write and extend the whole but i soon found that to do so would be to construct a complete system of philosophy a task for which i do not yet feel competent besides a work of that character would not fulfil the function of a manual which cannot do more than awaken an interest in philosophical problems and indicate the lines on which in the opinion of the writer they may be solved i have therefore with some reluctance retained the original outline contenting myself with making a few changes especially in chapters vi and x which as i hope may help to make the meaning clearer especially if they are read in connexion with the corresponding notes viii and xii the notes historical and critical of the present edition are intended to give a fuller view of topics discussed in the body of the work and to show their historical affiliation about the publisher forgotten introduction to properties introduces different ontological accounts of properties exploring how their formulation is shaped by the explanatory demands placed upon them this accessible introduction begins with a discussion of universals tropes sets and resemblance classes the major objections to them and their responses providing readers with a firm grasp on the competing ontological accounts of what if anything grounds similarity and difference it then explores issues concerning the formulation and justification of property theories such as how many properties are there should we accept a properties and other metaphysical phenomena such as causality laws and modality these questions get to the heart of why a coherent theory of properties is so important to metaphysics and to philosophy The Critical Philosophy of Immanuel Kant, Volume 1 2015-08-31 excerpt from an outline of philosophy with notes historical and critical the call for a second edition of this little work which now bears the more appropriate title an outline of philosophy has led me to attempt to make it somewhat more worthy of the favour with which it has been received knowing well how incomplete is the treatment of the various problems with which it deals my first impulse was to re write and extend the whole but i soon found that to do so would be to construct a complete system of philosophy a task for which i do not yet feel competent besides a work of that character would not fulfil the function of a manual which cannot do more than awaken an interest in philosophical problems and indicate the lines on which in the opinion of the writer they may be solved i have therefore with some reluctance retained the original outline contenting myself with making a few changes especially in chapters vi and x which as i hope may help to make the meaning clearer especially if they are read in connexion with the corresponding notes viii and xii the notes historical and critical of the present edition are intended to give a fuller view of topics discussed in the body of the work and to show their historical affiliation about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology

An Outline of Philosophy 2015-06-14 what do blue things have in common or electrons or planets distinct things appear to share properties but what are properties and what is the best philosophical account of them a critical introduction to properties introduces different ontological accounts of properties exploring how their formulation is shaped by the explanatory demands placed upon them this accessible introduction begins with a discussion of universals tropes sets and resemblance classes the major objections to them and their responses providing readers with a firm grasp on the competing ontological accounts of what if anything grounds similarity and difference it then explores issues concerning the formulation and justification of property theories such as how many properties are there should we accept a sparse ontology of properties or an abundant one can we make a distinction between intrinsic and extrinsic properties do properties have their causal roles necessarily what is the relationship between properties and other metaphysical phenomena such as causality laws and modality these questions get to the heart of why a coherent theory of properties is so important to metaphysics and to philosophy more generally by concluding with the question of the ontological status of properties the reader is introduced to some carnapian and contemporary themes about the content and methodology of metaphysics for students looking for an accessible resource and a more comprehensive understanding of contemporary metaphysics a critical introduction to properties is a valuable starting point
