drawing on work from both eminent and emerging scholars in translation and interpreting studies this collection offers a critical reflection on current methodological practices in these fields toward strengthening the theoretical and empirical ties between them methodological and technological advances have pushed these respective areas of study forward in the last few decades but advanced tools such as eye tracking and keystroke logging and insights from their use have often remained in isolation and not shared across disciplines this volume explores empirical and theoretical challenges across these areas and the subsequent methodologies implemented to address them and how they might be mutually applied across translation and interpreting studies but also brought together toward a coherent empirical theory of translation and interpreting studies organized around three key themes target text orientedness source text orientedness and translator interpreter orientedness the book takes stock of both studies of translation and interpreting corpora and processes in an effort to answer such key questions including how do written translation and interpreting relate to each other how do technological advances in these fields shape process and product what would an empirical theory of translation and interpreting studies look like taken together the collection showcases the possibilities of further dialogue around methodological practices in translation and interpreting studies and will be of interest to students and scholars in these fields in the latter half of the 1990s south africa s truth and reconciliation commission trc offered the country the chance to build a better future by facing up to its past amid saturation media coverage victims of human rights abuses told their harrowing stories and perpetrators confessed to horrendous acts meanwhile the commissioners grappled with decisions that would not only apportion responsibility and grant or deny amnesty but also have a profound political and social impact to this highly charged controversial subject dorothy shea brings a rare combination of objectivity thoroughness and a firm grasp of both the principles and the political interests at stake she begins by investigating the origins of the trc in south africa s transition from apartheid to democracy and she examines the extent to which it learned from the experiences of earlier latin american commissions then she focuses on how the politics of the trc were played out in issues such as amnesty reparations and prosecutions her report on the trc offers a generally positive assessment and explains not only how south africa measured up but also why finally shea draws lessons from the trc experience that may help to inform future efforts to shape and establish truth commissions in other transitional societies this study forms part of a series of studies on professions and professional education being conducted by the hsrc s research programme on education science skills development it follows a pilot study on medical doctors published in 2006 entitled doctors in a divided society the profession and education of medical practitioners in south africa like the other studies in the series this study involved developing an understanding of the professional milieu and professional labour market of social workers as the implementers of government social policy social work professionals have been at the forefront of grappling with the practicalities of the changes in focus approach and methods of social security and social service delivery since 1994 it examines developments in the education and training of social workers within the democratic dispensation the most significant of which is the development of a national standardised bachelor of social work degree the study also reveals that the dominant profile in student enrolment and graduation statistics has changed from white female to african female and that enrolment has increased significantly however the study also shows that graduation trends have been negative and losses due to emigration are an additional concern given the scarcity of these professionals against the demand for their services understanding the factors that contribute to this picture are critical to effective intervention

The South African Truth Commission 2000

this title was first published in 2001 using detailed international research this volume explores the background current position and key features of minority communities living within multi cultural societies focusing particularly upon family life the contributors investigate minorities ranging from the old order mennonites and cree and ojibway aboriginals in canada to conservative christians in the usa afrikaners in south africa and pakistanis in the uk the chapters demonstrate that while each of these communities is distinctive in terms of history culture religion and family behaviour they all share an ability to retain and nourish their separate identity the book thus provides fascinating insights into the lives of minority families and draws important conclusions surrounding the ways in which they keep themselves separate from while still participating in society as a whole
