future epidemics are inevitable and it takes months and even years to collect fully annotated data the sheer magnitude of data required for machine learning algorithms spanning both shallow and deep structures raises a fundamental question how big data is big enough to effectively tackle future epidemics in this context active learning often referred to as human or expert in the loop learning becomes imperative enabling machines to commence learning from day one with minimal labeled data in unsupervised learning the focus shifts toward constructing advanced machine learning models like deep structured networks that autonomously learn over time with human or expert intervention only when errors occur and for limited data a process we term mentoring in the context of covid 19 this book explores the use of deep features to classify data into two clusters 0 1 covid 19 non covid 19 across three distinct datasets cough sound computed tomography ct scan and chest x ray cxr not to be confused our primary objective is to provide a strong assertion on how active learning could potentially be used to predict disease from any upcoming epidemics upon request education training purpose github source codes are provided
