the hanyu da cidian unabridged dictionary of sinitic hcd is the first large scale comprehensive word dictionary in chinese history to include both ancient and modern language hcd is an excellent reference but it is difficult to find items in it because they are arranged by radicals and residual strokes hence the need for an alphabetical index of words the present volume provides easy access to the more than 350 000 multisyllabic entries found in hcd an alphabetical index of monosyllabic entries is already available it uses hanyu pinyin to provide phonetic annotation for the character entries which enables the user to locate them alphabetically dictionary was to throw light on the structure orthography and pronunciation of our language it was necessary to adhere strictly to the inverted order of arrangement that terminations of similar orthography might be classed together though those of similar sound would sometimes by this means be separated but as the inverted position of the words though the simplest that could be chosen for this purpose may possibly at first embarrass the inspector for poetry an index of rhymes is annexed in the same order as in poole and bysshe though much more copious and correct besides a reference to an almost infinite number of allowable rhymes with authorities for their usage from our best poets as an index to allowable rhymes is an attempt perfectly new it may not be improper to make a few observations with respect to its utility and answer some objections to which it may be liable about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works excerpt from a contents subject index to general and periodical literature owing to the vast increase in the literary output of recent years considerable anxiety has been felt by librarians and others as to the possibility of keeping pace with such conditions both in the additions to their stock of books and in the provision of adequate catalogues and other guides for the use of their readers in the course of the discussion and controversy arising on these matters considerable attention has been directed to the question of subject indexes and many valuable suggestions have been made although as yet little has been effected with general literature beyond giving the author and subject entries of the books the subject index may be divided into two classes the one referring to the main subject of a book or work which is generally set forth upon its title page the other to the contents of a work which are not apparent from its title and are rarely noted in an ordinary catalogue taken singly or individually it will be found that almost every work published in these days exclusive perhaps of prose fiction gives not only a clear announce ment of its main subject on the title page but also a description of its contents often carefully arranged under subject headings either in a list of contents or an index about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and
