and scale in this pioneering history francesca russello ammon explores how postwar america came to equate this destruction with progress the bulldozer functioned as both the means and the metaphor for this work as the machine transformed from a wartime weapon into an instrument of postwar planning it helped realize a landscape altering culture of clearance in the hands of the military planners politicians engineers construction workers and even children s book authors the bulldozer became an american icon yet social and environmental injustices emerged as clearance projects continued unabated this awareness spurred environmental preservationist and citizen participation efforts that have helped to slow though not entirely stop the momentum of the postwar bulldozer special edition of the federal register containing a codification of documents of general applicability and future effect with ancillaries in the early sixties crowds gathered to watch rites of destruction from the demolition derby where makeshift cars crashed into each other for sport to concerts where musicians destroyed their instruments to performances of self destructing machines staged by contemporary artists destruction in both its playful and fearsome aspects was ubiquitous in the new atomic age this complicated subjectivity was not just a way for people to find catharsis amid the fears of annihilation and postwar trauma but also a complex instantiation of ideological crisis in a time with some seriously conflicted political myths destruction rites explores the ephemeral visual culture of destruction in the postwar era and its links to contemporary art it examines the demolition derby games and toys based on warfare playgrounds situated in bomb sites and the rise of garage sales where goods designed for obsolescence and destined for the garbage heap are reclaimed and repurposed by local communities mona hadler looks at artists such as jean tinguely niki de saint phalle martha rosler and vito acconci to expose how the 1960s saw destruction construction and the everyday collide as never before during the atomic age whether in the public sphere or art museums destruction could be transformed into a constructive force and art objects and performances often oscillated between the two public housing was an integral part of the new deal as the federal government funded public works to generate economic activity and offer material support to families made destitute by the great depression and it remained a major element of urban policy in subsequent decades as chronicled in new deal ruins however housing policy since the 1990s has turned to the demolition of public housing in favor of subsidized units in mixed income communities and the use of tenant based vouchers rather than direct housing subsidies while these policies articulated in the hope vi program begun in 1992 aimed to improve the social and economic conditions of urban residents the results have been quite different as edward g goetz shows hundreds of thousands of people have been displaced and there has been a loss of more than 250 000 permanently affordable residential units goetz offers a critical analysis of the nationwide effort to dismantle public housing by focusing on the impact of policy changes in three cities atlanta chicago and new orleans goetz shows how this transformation is related to pressures of gentrification and the enduring influence of race in american cities african americans have been disproportionately affected by this policy shift it is the cities in which public housing is most closely identified with minorities that have been the most aggressive in removing units goetz convincingly refutes myths about the supposed failure of public housing he offers an evidence based argument for renewed investment in public housing to accompany housing choice initiatives as a model for innovative and equitable housing policy communist east germany s demolition of leipzig s perfectly intact medieval university church in may 1968 was an act decried as cultural barbarism across the two germanies and beyond although overshadowed by the crackdown on prague spring mere weeks later the willful destruction of this historic landmark on a central site symbolically renamed karl marx square represents an essential turning point in the relationship between the communist authorities and the people they claimed to serve as the largest case of public protest in east german history between the 1953 uprising and 1989 revolution this intimate local trauma exhibits the inner workings of a dictatorial system and exposes the often gray and overlapping lines between state and citizenry which included both quiet and open resistance passive and active collaboration through deep analysis of untapped periodicals and archives including once classified state documents stasi and police records and extensive private protest letters it introduces a broad cast of characters who helped make the inconceivable possible and restores the voices of not a few ordinary citizens of all stripes who dared in the name of culture humanism and civic pride to protest what they saw as an inconceivable tragedy in this city that later started the 1989 october revolution which ultimately triggered the fall of the berlin wall residents from every social background desperately hoped to convince their leaders to step back from the brink but as the dust cleared in 1968 they saw with all finality that their voices meant nothing that the ddr was a sham democracy awash with utopian rhetoric that had no connection with their everyday lives if communism died in prague in 1968 it had already died in leipzig just weeks before with repercussions that still haunt today s politics of memory for the last five years britain has been under the hammer of austerity in its name wages have been frozen benefits have been slashed and public spending squeezed the pain of a financial crisis caused by bankers and speculators has been borne by ordinary people all over the country and by the poor and disabled most of all the fast consolidating identities along religious and ethnic lines in recent years have confusing policy frameworks on caste and class lines and institutionalised riot systems the community has also suffered from the lack of leadership from within at the same time indian muslims have emerged as a mass around which the politics of vote bank appeasement foreigners pakistanis within the country and so on are innovated and played upon making them further apprehensive about asserting their legitimate right to development the important issues of the double marginalisation of muslim women and attempts to reform the muslim personal law by some civil society groups is also discussed contributed by academics activists and journalists the articles discuss issues of integration exclusion and violence and attempt to understand categories such as identity minority multiculturalism and nationalism with regard to and in the context of indian muslims this second edition with a new introduction will be of great interest to scholars and researchers in sociology politics history cultural from the construction maintenance renovation and demolition of buildings and structures represents a large proportion of the waste in industrialized societies compared to other forms such as household waste more than 90 of cdw can be used as a resource and a substitute for construction materials especially for primary natural raw materials reuse recovery and recycling depends on the quality and market for the materials and the environmental impact of the processes for conversion of cdw from old structures to its use in new structures however the utilization today of cdw products as secondary resources is marginal most cdw is deposited or used as fill material and the opportunities of high quality recycling are generally neglected this book presents the opportunities for the sustainable and resource efficient utilisation of cdw focusing on recycling of concrete and masonry as the major forms of cdw the recycling of gypsum timber mineral wool asphalt and other types are also described its aim is to present a chain of value and material streams in the transformation of obsolete buildings and structures into new buildings and structures it takes a holistic view focusing on the lifecycle economy the circular economy and integrated management aspects of various scenarios ranging from high industrial urban renewal to debris removal and management after disasters and conflicts
