on its own the number of people who stop claiming benefits is a flawed measure of how effective jobcentres are the dwp needs to be clear how it will measure the performance of jobcentres under universal credit and understand what happens to claimants the department needs this information to see whether its interventions are achieving a long term reduction in the number claiming benefits at present 40 per cent of individuals reclaim benefit within 6 months with 60 per cent reclaiming within 2 years claimants who don t look for work should face consequences but there is a risk that sanctions unfairly penalize the most vulnerable claimants particularly those with mental health problems those at risk of sanctions should be given a written warning the department also needs to monitor by claimant group and jobcentre how many claimants are being penalized information is needed on how different jobcentres are managing their caseloads so that good practice can be identified and disseminated local flexibility also opens up the possibility that harder to help claimants such as those with disabilities get parked the department needs to look closely at its ability to support disabled claimants particularly given that these groups suffer poor outcomes under the work programme jobcentres will have to cater for new claimant groups as a consequence of the introduction of universal credit people will also increasingly manage benefit claims and job searches online some claimants will inevitably struggle which will increase the burden on third parties such as libraries and citizens advice which are themselves under severe pressure shaw 16 contains twenty nine unpublished pieces by shaw written between 1877 and 1950 the most significant is a ten page draft synopsis of man and superman the original manuscript draft of the play has been lost in a contemplated five act version providing scholars with a hitherto unavailable ur text equally important for the biographical and artistic insights they offer are the early literary efforts found in shaw s first opus notebook including an extended narrative verse fragment of 1877 set in dublin a polemic his first on oakum picking and prison conditions a criticism of organists and orchestral conductors and an attempted evaluation of contemporary arts and letters in 1878 we find shaw through the persona of a female narrator creating in his own image a fictional memoir of the young hector berlioz offering an ironic vindication of housebreakers in anticipation of heartbreak house exploring the seamy side of the prizefight ring examining exhausted genres of victorian art in 1880 defining the true signification of the term gentleman lecturing on socialism and the family and on realism as the goal of fiction and penetratingly considering the future of marriage in a rejected book review one of four included in the volume the dimensions of shaw s political views may be examined through nearly a dozen commentaries on politics and on war and peace ranging from the boer war an 1899 draft letter to the press why not abolish the soldier and 1903 municipal elections to u s liberty loans the italo abyssinian war how to talk intelligently about the second world war and the implications of the hydrogen bomb in the nuclear age for good measure the volume concludes with two brief playlets previously unrecorded the editors have arranged these pieces individually or grouped by theme and genre as near to chronological order as possible and the reader is brought closer to the original manuscripts by the retention of shaw's stylistic and spelling inconsistencies and by transliteration of the shorthand notations he frequently inserted between lines or in the margins each text is supplemented by an editorial note providing its provenance and a detailed physical description of the manuscript
