critically examine desistance as a construct process and outcome as well as the place of strengths work in correctional and forensic mental health settings integrating theory empirical evidence and applied practices this timely volume is an essential scholarly resource with a clear practical emphasis for policy makers researchers practitioners and graduate students dimensions of black conservatism in the us is a collection of twelve essays by leading black intellectuals and scholars on varied dimensions of black conservative thought and activism the book explores the political role and functions of black neoconservatives the majority of essays cover the contemporary period the authors have provided a historical context for the reader with several articles examining the origins and development of black conservatism this comprehensive and stimulating handbook examines the contribution of political economy to public policy it provides an overview of several strands of critical political economy supported by case studies from oecd countries latin america south africa and south and east asia enhanced transparency accountability and government or donor responsiveness to people needs are imperative to achieve better and more sustainable development results on the ground the rapid spread of new technologies is transforming the daily lives of millions of poor people around the world and has the potential to be a real game changer for development improved accountability and responsiveness are critical for reaching the goals of eliminating extreme poverty and promoting shared prosperity with a focus on improving the well being of the most vulnerable and marginalized groups in society within the broader political economy context many questions remain unanswered about the role that new technologies can play to act as an accelerator for closing the accountability gap within this context this report brings together new evidence from leading academics and practitioners on the effects of technology enabled citizen engagement the report aims to address the following four main questions how do new technologies empower communities through participation transparency and accountability are technologies an accelerator for closing the accountability gap the space between supply governments service providers and demand citizens communities civil society organizations that must be bridged for open and collaborative governance under what conditions does this occur and what are the experiences and lessons learned from existing grassroots innovators and donor supported citizen engagement and crowdsourcing programs and how can these programs be replicated or scaled up the report presents a theoretical framework about the linkages between new technologies participation empowerment and the improvement of poor people s human well being based on amartya sen s capability approach the book provides rich case studies about the different factors that influence whether or not information and communication technology ict enabled citizen engagement programs can improve the delivery and quality of public services to poor communities the report analyzes in depth both the factors and process of using new technologies to enhance the delivery of primary health services to pregnant women in karnataka india and of several community mapping and crowdsourcing programs in guinea haiti kenya libya sudan and other countries a leader s role in the management of change is a critical issue for successful outcomes of strategic initiatives globalization and economic instability have prompted an increase in organizational changes related to downsizing and restructuring in order to improve financial performance and organizational competitiveness researchers agree that a leader s inability to fully understand what is needed in order to guide their organization through successful change can be a reason for failure proper planning and management of change can reduce the likelihood of failure promote change effectiveness and increase employee engagement yet change in organizations must be viewed as a continuous activity that affects both organizational and individual outcomes if change management can be considered as an event induced by socio cultural factors the cultural variable gains greater significance when applied to the quality of the relationship between a leader and their team many organizations today are on the verge of internationalization it is here that the cultural context can affect behaviors and in the same way leadership style the research presented in this book by an eminent group of scholars explores the influence of culture ethnic regional religious on how leaders manage change within organizations this book examines the application of the world trade organization s wto agreement on trade related aspects of intellectual property rights trips in the fields of agriculture public health and economic development in a least developed country ldc such as bangladesh in particular it evaluates the question whether the trips one size fits all approach compulsorily applicable for all countries irrespective of their development standing fulfils the developmental needs of bangladesh and other such ldcs in the fields of agriculture public health and economic development the book shows that the trips introduction of iprs in the name of plant varieties protection pvp and patents not only secures private sector investment in agriculture but also brings traditional agricultural practices within the spectrum of private monopoly increases the price of agricultural products and forces people into dependency seeds and other agricultural inputs to guard against such trade rules this book recommends that bangladesh should incorporate the trips flexibilities in the form of redefining patentable invention choosing between patents and pvp and providing for compulsory licensing this book also reveals that the trips patenting in pharmaceuticals encourages innovations by ensuring royalty collections and protects public health by raising standards of living however patenting offers exclusivity to pharmaceutical companies extending the duration of the patent term and establishing their control over production supply and distribution such control results in exclusivity over drug pricing the flexibilities of the compliance deadline compulsory licensing and parallel importation built into the trips are set to tackle untenable situations arising from patenting exclusivity however patent laws in most ldc's are out dated in terms of dealing with such flexibilities given this the research recommends that bangladesh should invoke the trips flexibilities the author of this book further establishes that the trips standard setting in agriculture and pharmaceuticals does not help the country to fulfil subsistence needs or promote economic development through innovation however the appropriation of agricultural and pharmaceutical goods during the use of the trips flexibilities has the potential to feed the people protect public health interests and increase economic development with the supply of food and drugs at home and abroad to this end the research asks bangladesh to reform its existing ipr's provisions by redefining patentable inventions and simplifying compulsory licensing and other differential treatments to appropriate foreign technologies babies who cry a lot or are unsettled in the night are common sources of concern for parents and consequently costly problems for health services in this book ian st james roberts summarises the evidence concerning infant crying and sleeping problems to provide a new evidence based approach to these common challenges for parents and health services the book begins by distinguishing between infant and parental parts of the problems and provides guidelines for assessing each issue topics covered include the pros and cons of infant demand versus limit setting forms of parenting causes of infant colicky crying and night waking effects of night time separations on infant attachments interventions such as swaddling herbal remedies and controlled crying since there is now firm evidence that parents vulnerabilities and cultural backgrounds affect how problems are defined and guidance is acted upon and that parents who wish to do so can reduce infant crying and unsettled night waking social factors are considered alongside medical issues translating research evidence into practical tools and guidance the origins prevention and treatment of infant crying and sleeping problems will be essential reading for a wide range of healthcare professionals including mental health staff social workers midwives health visitors community physicians and paediatricians unesco pub world bibliography of social sciences periodicals and directory of social science information services it was traditionally assumed that a single official language was necessary for the wellbeing of the state particularly in france and britain this assumption is now questioned and regional languages are making in some cases an impressive comeback this book analyses a range of languages development decline and efforts at regeneration we present a comparative epistemological analysis of the wisdom motifs in psalms 1 73 90 and 107 these texts were selected on the basis of their epistemological content each confronts the relationship between virtue and prosperity and their canonical placement within the psalter each begins one of the psalter s five books we explore the implications of their respective epistemological features for our understanding of the canonical structure of the psalter after developing a diagnostic method for the identification and analysis of the epistemological features within a biblical text we apply it to each of the four psalms and discuss their epistemological qualities with respect to their canonical placement in the psalter we find that an epistemic progression develops across the canonical ordering of the four psalms while the psalmists are increasingly forthright in acknowledging the moral paradox that the righteous often suffer while the wicked can prosper they engage this paradox with ever more sophisticated responses although yhwh is ultimately the source of all wisdom human beings can facilitate their acquisition of knowledge by seeking him out a leader's role in the management of change is a critical issue for successful outcomes of strategic initiatives. Globalization and economic instability have prompted an increase in organizational changes related to downsizing and restructuring in order to improve financial performance and organizational competitiveness. Researchers agree that a leader's inability to fully understand what is needed in order to guide their organization through successful change can be a reason for failure. Proper planning and management of change can reduce the likelihood of failure, promote change effectiveness, and increase employee engagement. Yet change in organizations must be viewed as a continuous activity that affects both organizational and individual outcomes. If change management can be considered as an event induced by socio-cultural factors, the cultural variable gains greater significance when applied to the quality of the relationship between a leader and their team. Many organizations today are on the verge of internationalization; it is here that the cultural context can affect behaviors and, in the same way, leadership style. The research presented in this book by an eminent group of scholars explores the influence of culture—ethnic, regional, religious—on how leaders manage change within organizations.

This book examines the application of the World Trade Organization's WTO Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) in the fields of agriculture, public health, and economic development in a least developed country (LDC) such as Bangladesh. In particular, it evaluates the question whether the TRIPS "one size fits all" approach compulsorily applicable for all countries, irrespective of their development, standing, fulfills the developmental needs of Bangladesh and other such LDCs in the fields of agriculture, public health, and economic development. The book shows that the TRIPS introduction of IP rights in the name of plant varieties protection (PVP) and patents not only secures private sector investment in agriculture but also brings traditional agricultural practices within the spectrum of private monopoly increases the price of agricultural products and forces people into dependency on engineered seeds and other agricultural inputs to guard against such trade rules this book recommends that bangladesh should incorporate the trips flexibilities in the form of redefining patentable invention choosing between patents and pvp and providing for compulsory licensing this book also reveals that the trips patenting in pharmaceuticals encourages innovations by ensuring royalty collections and protects public health by raising standards of living however patenting offers exclusivity to pharmaceutical companies extending the duration of the patent term and establishing their control over production supply and distribution such control results in exclusivity over drug pricing the flexibilities of the compliance deadline compulsory licensing and parallel importation built into the trips are set to tackle untenable situations arising from patenting exclusivity however patent laws in most ldc's are out dated in terms of dealing with such flexibilities given this the research recommends that bangladesh should invoke the trips flexibilities the author of this book further establishes that the trips standard setting in agriculture and pharmaceuticals does not help the country to fulfil subsistence needs or promote economic development through innovation however the appropriation of agricultural and pharmaceutical goods during the use of the trips flexibilities has the potential to feed the people protect public health interests and increase economic development with the supply of food and drugs at home and abroad to this end the research asks bangladesh to reform its existing ipr's provisions by redefining patentable inventions and simplifying compulsory licensing and other differential treatments to appropriate foreign technologies
