certain amount of change we can only affect how change takes place and its pathway not whether or not it happens he introduces the concept of the change wave which describes change as a dynamic process of energy gathering and distribution this diagnostic tool can be used by individuals to understand where they are in the change process so that they may effectively move past boundaries or points of blockage to the resolution of perplexing issues many of us get stuck in an impasse loop where we repeat processes that remain unfinished or unwhole dr sabetti also provides some humorous
