post apartheid south african elections have borne an unmistakable racial imprint africans vote for one set of parties whites support a different set of parties and with few exceptions there is no crossover voting between groups these voting tendencies have solidified the dominance of the ruling african national congress anc over south african politics and turned south african elections into racial censuses this book explores the political sources of these outcomes it argues that although the beginnings of these patterns lie in south africa s past in the effects apartheid had on voters beliefs about race and destiny and the reputations parties forged during this period the endurance of the census reflects the ruling party s ability to use the powers of office to prevent the opposition from evolving away from its apartheid era party label by keeping key opposition parties white the anc has rendered them powerless solidifying its hold on power in spite of an increasingly restive and dissatisfied electorate

how to steal a country describes the vertiginous decline in political leadership in south africa from mandela to zuma and its terrible consequences robin renwick s account reads in parts like a novel a crime novel for sherlock holmes old adversary professor moriarty the erstwhile napoleon of crime would have been impressed by the ingenuity audacity and sheer scale of the looting of the public purse let alone the impunity with which it has been accomplished based on renwick s personal experiences of the main protagonists it describes the extraordinary influence achieved by the gupta family for those seeking to do business with state owned enterprises in south africa and the massive amounts earned by gupta related companies from their associations with them the ensuing scandals have engulfed bell pottinger kpmg mckinsey and other multinationals the primary responsibility for this looting of the state however rests squarely with president zuma and key members of his government but south africa has succeeded in establishing a genuinely non racial society full of determined and enterprising people offering genuine hope for the future these include independent journalists black and white who refuse to be silenced and the judges who have acted with courage and independence the book concludes that change will come either by the ruling party reverting to the values of mandela and archbishop tutu or by the reckoning it otherwise will face one day
