i have no specific reason why i began writing short stories at the age of seventy five only a suspicion seventy five years is a very long time and one accumulates countless experiences many of which lay dormant in ones mind until one day the people in those experiences begin to come together and you have no idea what to do with them they are just memories but there is a story in each and every one of them even though it takes years to realize it so instead of just letting them sit in my old brain i began putting them together and the result is the collection of short stories in this book i have no idea if they are interesting or not all i know is they could not stay in my mind any longer thank you for taking the time to read them through analyses of a wide range of chinese literary and visual texts from the beginning of the twentieth century through the contemporary period the thirteen essays in this volume challenge the view that canonical and popular culture are self evident and diametrically opposed categories and instead argue that the two cultural sensibilities are inextricably bound up with one another an international line up of contributors present detailed analyses of literary works and other cultural products that have previously been neglected by scholars while also examining more familiar authors and works from provocative new angles the essays include investigations into the cultural industries and contexts that produce the canonical and popular the position of contemporary popular works at the interstices of nostalgia and amnesia and also the ways in which cultural texts are inflected with gendered and erotic sensibilities while at the same time also functioning as objects of desire in its own right as the only volume of its kind to cover the entire span of the 20th century and also to consider the interplay of popular and canonical literature in modern china with comparable rigor rethinking chinese popular culture is an important resource for students and scholars of chinese literature and culture
