A Study of Revision in the 1981 Wisconsin Writing Assessment 1982 despite the increasingly global implications of conversations about writing and learning u s composition studies has devoted little attention to cross national perspectives on student writing and its roles in wider cultural contexts caught up in our own concerns about how u s students make the transition as writers from secondary school to postsecondary education we often overlook the fact that students around the world are undergoing the same evolution how do the students in china england france germany kenya or south africa the educational systems represented in this collection write their way into the communities of their chosen disciplines how for instance do students whose mother tongue is not the language of instruction cope with the demands of academic and discipline specific writing and in what ways is u s students development as academic writers similar to or different from that of students in other countries with this collection editors david foster and david r russell broaden the discussion about the role of writing in various educational systems and cultures students development as academic writers raises issues of student authorship and agency as well as larger issues of educational access institutional power relations system goals and students roles in society the contributors to this collection discuss selected writing purposes and forms characteristic of a specific national education system describe students agency as writers and identify contextual factors social economic linguistic cultural that shape institutional responses to writing development in discussions that bookend these studies of different educational structures the editors compare u s postsecondary writing practices and pedagogies with those in other national systems and suggest new perspectives for cross national study of learning writing issues important to all educational systems given the worldwide increase in students entering higher education and the endless need for effective writing across disciplines and nations the insights offered here and the call for further studies are especially welcome and timely

Research in Education 1973 in recent years there has been increased attention paid to the importance of assessment in geographical education the chosen subject for this book assessment is an important tool for collecting information about student learning and for providing timely data to inform key stakeholders including students teachers parents and policymakers to be effective assessment needs to be valid reliable and fair validity is about ensuring that we assess what we claim we are assessing reliability is about measuring performance and understanding in a consistent way without validity and reliability assessment is unlikely to provide equitable opportunities for students to demonstrate what they know and can do as geography educators it is therefore important that we identify the core concepts and skills in geography that we want students to master we need a clear understanding of what the progression of learning looks like for each concept and skill so we can develop fit for purpose assessments that track and improve student learning while there is a substantial literature on evidence based assessment in secondary school contexts research exploring best practice assessment in geography is rare this is a concern given the distinctive nature of geography and the important role of assessment in the learning process this scholarly collection seeks to address this issue by connecting research in educational assessment with the domain of geography the chapters are written by leading researchers in geographical education from across the globe these chapters provide examples of innovation through the collective voices of geography teacher educator scholars from across australia usa south korea germany switzerland and singapore what unifies the work in this book is that each chapter focuses on a key feature of the discipline of geography providing scholarly examples of evidence based practices for assessing student s knowledge and skills
