3d surface representation has long been a source of information describing surface character and facilitating an understanding of system dynamics from micro scale e g sand transport to macro scale e g drainage channel network evolution data collection has been achieved through field mapping techniques and the use of remotely sensed data advances in this latter field have been considerable in recent years with new rapid acquisition methods being developed centered around laser based technology the advent of airborne and field based laser scanning instruments has allowed researchers to collect high density accurate data sets and these are revealing a wealth of new information and generating important new ideas concerning terrain characterisation and landform dynamics the proposed book collates a series of invited peer reviewed papers presented at the a conference on geoinformatics and lidar to be held at the national centre for geocomputation based in the national university of ireland maynooth current constraints in field survey and dem construction are reviewed together with technical and applied issues around the new technology the utility of the data in process modelling is also covered the book will be of great value to researchers in the field of geomorphology geostatistics remote sensing and gis and will prove extremely useful to students and practitioners concerned with terrain analysis the proposed work will highlight major technological breakthrough in 3d data collection feature examples of application across a wide range of environmental areas critically evaluate the role of laser based techniques in the environment detail theory and application of laser techniques in the natural environment solar and geomagnetic variability are of considerable interest for scientists of many different persuasions and indeed one has the distinct impression that for the sun at least there is direct relevance for mankind in general as the interrelation between solar and terrestrial phenomena is starting to be appreciated from the vast time scale of interest in the variability field attention was confined to the last 10 000 years in a nato advanced research workshop held from april 6 10 1987 in durham england and the present publication comprises the lectures given there such a workshop was very timely in view of the impressive new data available from 14c analysis in dated tree rings and lobe in polar ice cores from natural palaeomagnetic records in lacustrine sediments and from archaeomagnetic material also to be mentioned are new studies of historical accounts of naked eye sunspots and aurorae all the data have contributed to improvements in understanding the relative variations of solar properties the geomagnetic field and climate and it is hoped that this volume will convey the flavour of these advances in knowledge a feature of the workshop was the lively discussions which followed so many of the papers there were several instances of healthy disagreement and this is reflected in the opposing views presented this comprehensive book presents an integrated study of human movement and applies this knowledge to human performance and physical activity across the lifespan the biophysical foundations of human movement second edition considers basic methods and concepts typical research questions key historical developments professional training and organizations and suggestions for further reading within each subdiscipline the authors offer a unique perspective on the subdisciplines by exploring not only the basic science but also the changes in human movement and movement potential that occur throughout the lifespan as well in response to training practice and other lifestyle factors quantitative environmental risk analysis for human health an updated edition of the foundational guide to environmental risk analysis environmental risk analysis is a systematic process essential for the evaluation management and communication of the human health risk posed by the release of contaminants to the environment performed correctly risk analysis is an essential tool in the protection of the public from the health hazards posed by chemical and radioactive contaminants cultivating the quantitative skills required to perform risk analysis competently is a critical need quantitative environmental risk analysis for human health meets this need with a thorough comprehensive coverage of the fundamental knowledge necessary to assess environmental impacts on human health it introduces readers to a robust methodology for analyzing environmental risk as well as to the fundamental principles of uncertainty analysis and the pertinent environmental regulations now updated to reflect the latest research and new cutting edge methodologies this is an essential contribution to the practice of environmental risk analysis readers of the second edition of quantitative environmental risk analysis for human health will also find detailed treatment of source and release characterization contaminant migration exposure assessment and more new coverage of computer based analytical methods a new chapter of case studies providing actual real world examples of environmental risk assessments quantitative environmental risk analysis for human health is must have for graduate and advanced undergraduate students in civil engineering environmental engineering and environmental science as well as for risk analysis practitioners in industry environmental consultants and regulators
