the mood of the first u of m u s japan auto conference in january 1981 could only be described as electric people wanted to know what our problems were and how we could begin to solve them inherent in the latter issue was the questions what could we learn from the japanese one left the conference with a sense that there was a call for action a mandate to address the problems facing industry the mood about a year later at the march 1982 u s japan auto conference was far more subdued while undoubtedly this reflected the stream of statistics confirming the continually depressed state of the industry another dynamic was possibly operating as well whereas the 1981 conference was electric a state of mind which flowed from a certain frustration at seemingly overwhelming difficulties and often vague expectations of what we might learn from the japanese the 1982 conference was more workmanlike in the sense that speakers discussed specifically what progress was being made in addressing problems this more subdued pragmatic approach continued throughout wand was reinforced by workshops held the day after the main conference instead of discussing the virtues of the just in time system in japan speakers addressed the practical problems of introducing such a system in the u s firms instead of railing about the benefits or failings of regulation of the industry they discussed what we could reasonably expect from regulation instead of exhorting the industry to adopt japanese practices willy nilly they focused on some of the limitations of the japanese model in a range of different areas instead of trying to identify some magic key to japanese success in the automotive industry they discussed the interrelationships among various factors at the same they continued to explore the basic issues transforming the auto industry worldwide in this connection they sought to unravel some of the complexities associated with the internalization of the auto industry and trade obligations under the gatt

in 1991 ireland was in the midst of a devastating recession thousands of young irish men and women had emigrated over the previous decade and divisive social and moral debates on abortion and divorce had rocked irish society the great pillars of society politics and religion were beginning to crumble a process that continued in subsequent years as both institutions were hit by scandal a questioning of the values on which ireland had been built had begun with an apparently unbridgeable divide opening between traditionalists and modernizers at the start of the decade the modernizers appeared to have won with the election as president of the iconic mary robinson irish times columnist john waters captured the zeitgeist of the time with the hugely successful jiving at the crossroads which sold over 50 000 copies a defining book of the era its success was partly due to its remarkable blending of social cultural commentary with personal memoir at the emotional core of the book was the relationship between waters and his father and the story of ireland was intricately woven into this powerful narrative it was the first in a long line of books to question the very notion of modern irish identity and to examine the deep rooted tensions at the heart of the irish psyche twenty years later much has changed in ireland and yet jiving at the crossroads remains a deeply resonant book particularly in the light of the remarkable rise and precipitous fall of the celtic tiger and the fresh questioning of how we got where we are now this twentieth anniversary reissue of a landmark book with a new introduction will be welcomed by those who remember it and will be a fascinating insight for a new generation of irish people it is published in parallel with a brand new book by john waters when we are free which takes up the story of jiving twenty years on to reflect on ireland and the irish in 2011
