executive summary and key recommendations the nature of the problem geographical inequalities in the uk are a longstanding and persistent problem rooted in deepseated and cumulative processes of local and regional divergence with antecedents in the inter war years and accelerating since the early 1980s this spatial divergence has been generated by the inability of some places to adapt to the emergence of the post industrial service and knowledge based economy whose geographies are very different from those of past heavy industries as a consequence the left behind problem has become spatially and systemically entrenched challenging ideas of market led adjustment there is little evidence that real cost advantages in northern areas are correcting and offsetting the geographically differentiated development of skilled labour and human capital and the quality of residential and business environments a variety of different types of left behind place exist at different scales and these types combine common problems with distinctive economic trajectories and varied causes these different types will need policies that are sensitive and adaptive to their specific problems and potentialities contemporary economic development is marked by agglomeration in high skilled and knowledge intensive activities research based concentrations of high skilled activity in the uk have been limited and concentrated heavily in parts of london and cities in the golden triangle especially oxford and cambridge even in london the benefits have been unevenly spread between boroughs existing analyses of the predicaments of left behind places present a stark division between rapid growth in winning high skilled cities and relative decline in losing areas this view is problematic because it oversimplifies the experience in the uk and other countries a false binary distinction is presented to policymakers which offers only the possibility of growth in larger cities and derived spillovers and other compensations elsewhere yet the post industrial economy involves strong dispersal of activity and growth to smaller cities towns and rural areas however this process has been highly selective between local areas and needs to be better understood the institutional and policy response past policies in the uk have lacked recognition of the scale and importance of the left behind problem and committed insufficient resources to its resolution the objective of achieving a less geographically unequal economy has not been incorporated into mainstream policymaking when compared with other countries the uk has taken an overcentralized top down approach to policy formulation and implementation often applying one size fits all policy measures to different geographical situations political cycles have underpinned a disruptive churn of institutions and policies in contrast with other organisation for economic co operation and development oecd countries particularly in europe there has been limited long term strategy and continuity and inadequate development of local policymaking capacity and capabilities especially for research analysis monitoring and evaluation past policies have been underfunded inconsistent and inadequately tailored and adapted to the needs of different local economies we estimate that on average over the period 1961 2020 the uk government invested on average 2.9 billion per annum in direct spatial policy 2020 prices equivalent to around 0.15 of gross national income gni per annum over the period european union structural and cohesion policy support has added around 0.12 gni 2020 prices per annum to this over the period from the late 1970s these broad estimates suggest that discretionary expenditure in the uk on urban and regional policy when both domestic and european union spatial policy was in operation was equivalent to 0.27 per annum of uk gni 2020 prices this is dwarfed by mainstream spending programmes by comparison the uk committed 14.5 billion 0.7 of gni to international aid in 2019 the level of resources devoted to spatial policy has been modest given the entrenched and cumulative nature of the problem policies for levelling up need clearly to distinguish different types of left behind places and devise a set of place sensitive and targeted policies for these types of clubs of left behind areas this shift will need a radical expansion of place based policymaking in the uk which allows national and local actors to collaborate on the design of appropriate targeted programmes a key priority for levelling up is revitalizing northern cities and boosting their contribution to the national economy underperformance in these urban centres has been a major contributor to persistent geographical inequality in the uk addressing the uk s geographical economic inequalities and the plight of left behind places requires substantially more decentralization of power and resources to place based agencies this would enable the current uk government s levelling up agenda to capitalize on the many advantages of more place based policymaking to diagnose problems build on local capabilities strengthen resilience and adapt to local changes in circumstances crucially place based efforts need to be coordinated and aligned with place sensitive national policies the key challenge of a levelling up mission is to integrate place based policies with greater place sensitivity in national policies and in regulation and mainstream economic spending it is important to develop policies that spread the benefits from agglomeration and ensure that the income effects and innovations produced by high skill concentrations diffuse to the wider cityregional economies and their firms especially small and medium sized enterprises and workers there is a clear need for more policy thinking on how this can be achieved policy for levelling up needs to align and coordinate with the other national missions for net zero carbon and post pandemic recovery this suggests that a strong place making agenda focused on quality of life infrastructure and housing in many left behind places is important for post industrial and service growth genuine place making is a long term process involving public private and civic participation which allows local responses to those economic environmental and social constraints and problems that most strongly reduce the quality of life in local areas a truly total place approach is required the quality of infrastructure housing stock and public services is crucial for the quality of place as well as the ability to secure and attract more dispersed forms of growth there is little hope of delivering place making if public sector austerity is once again allowed to cut back public services more severely in poorer and more deprived areas the way forward the scale and nature of the uk s contemporary left behind places problem are such that only a transformative shift in policy model and a resource commitment of historic proportions are likely to achieve the levelling up ambition that is central to the current government s political ambitions key recommendations in summary our recommendations are that the uk government should grasp the transformative moment for local regional and urban development policy as the uk adjusts to a post covid 19 world and seeks a net zero carbon future the scourge of america s economy isn t the success of the 1 percent quite the opposite the real problem is the government s well meaning but misguided attempt to reduce the payoffs for success four years ago edward conard wrote a controversial bestseller unintended consequences which set the record straight on the financial crisis of 2008 and explained why u s growth was accelerating relative to other high wage economies he warned that loose monetary policy would produce neither growth nor inflation that expansionary fiscal policy would have no lasting benefit on growth in the aftermath of the crisis and that ill advised attempts to rein in banking based on misplaced blame would slow an already weak recovery unfortunately he was right now he s back with another provocative argument that our current obsession with income inequality is misguided and will only slow growth further using fact based logic conard tracks the implications of an economy now constrained by both its capacity for risk taking and by a shortage of properly trained talent rather than by labor or capital as was the case historically he uses this fresh perspective to challenge the conclusions of liberal economists like larry summers and joseph stiglitz and the myths of crony capitalism more broadly instead he argues that the growing wealth of most successful americans is not to blame for the stagnating incomes of the middle and working classes if anything the success of the 1 percent has put upward pressure on employment and wages conard argues that high payoffs for success motivate talent to get the training and take the risks that gradually loosen the constraints to growth well meaning attempts to decrease inequality through redistribution dull these incentives gradually hurting not just the 1 percent but everyone else as well conard outlines a plan for growing middle and working class wages in an economy with a near infinite supply of labor that is shifting from capital intensive manufacturing to knowledge intensive innovation driven fields he urges us to stop blaming the success of the 1 percent for slow wage growth and embrace the upside of inequality faster growth and greater prosperity for everyone
