this selection of extracts written between 1880 and 1895 from the unpublished journals of lewis harcourt is designed as a companion volume to harcourt and son the political biography of the victorian statesman sir william harcourt published in 2004. lewis harcourt was the constant companion and confidential secretary of his father who during the period covered by these journals was home secretary and chancellor of the exchequer in the last three of gladstone's four liberal governments. the journals provide an insider's view of the party politics of the period since lewis harcourt was closely acquainted with all his father's colleagues including john morley, joseph chamberlain, charles dilke, and gladstone himself. the second volume of the library of america's definitive two-volume selection of the nonfiction writings of our greatest living advocate for sustainable culture, writing with elegance and clarity, wendell berry is a compassionate and compelling voice for our time of political and cultural distrust and division. whether expounding the joys and wisdom of nonindustrial agriculture, relishing the pleasure of eating food produced locally by people you know, or giving voice to a righteous contempt for hollow innovation, he is our most important writer on the cultural crisis posed by industrialization and mass consumerism, and the vital role of rural sustainable farming in preserving the planet, as well as our national character. now, in celebration of berry's extraordinary six-decade-long career, library of america presents a two-volume selection of his nonfiction writings, prepared in close consultation with the author. in this second volume, forty-four essays from ten works turn to issues of political and social debate: big government, science, and religion; and the meaning of citizenship following the tragedy of 9/11. also included is his jefferson lecture to the national endowment for the humanities. it all turns on affection. 2012 berry's essays remain timely even urgent today and will resonate with anyone interested in our relationship to the natural world, and especially with a younger, politically engaged generation invested in the future welfare of the planet. includes life is a miracle and selections from sex economy, freedom, community, another turn of the crank, citizenship papers, the way of ignorance, what matters, imagination in place. it all turns on affection. our only world, the art of loading brush. library of america is an independent nonprofit cultural organization founded in 1979 to preserve our nation's literary heritage by publishing and keeping permanently in print America's best and most significant writing. The Library of America series includes more than 300 volumes to date, authoritative editions that average 1,000 pages in length, feature cloth covers, sewn bindings, and ribbon markers, and are printed on premium acid-free paper that will last for centuries. Edited with introduction and notes, this is a new print-on-demand hardback edition of the volume first published in 1928, the first ever biography of Edward Vernon Harcourt, Archbishop of York from 1807 to 1847 and the last aristocrat to hold the office. The title of the book reflects the fact that throughout his ministerial career as Home Secretary and Chancellor of the Exchequer under Gladstone, Harcourt was supported by his son Lewis Loulou, who acted as private secretary and confidential advisor, and whose unpublished journals were one of the main sources for the book. The author also made extensive use of other contemporary diaries, particularly those of John Morley, only recently made accessible, and thousands of manuscript letters to and from Harcourt. Jacket as a young man, Harcourt Harky Klinefelter became involved in the U.S. civil rights movement of the 1960s. He was at the right place at the right time: the Selma march of 1965, to become the soundman for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. This meant that Harky was there to record King's sermons and historic speeches that Harky then prepared for re-broadcasting after King's assassination in 1968. Harky worked as minister to the street people, and in 1972 he moved to Europe, where he is working to spread King's message about meeting discrimination, poverty, and violence with nonviolent action, and to be a negotiator and trainer for peace in war-torn countries. Along with his memories of working closely with King are some of Harky's philosophical and theological insights, an account of his teaching and training career, his ministry, his peace activities, and a life lived out from the faith that overcomes. First published in 2005, this book represents the first full-length biography of John Phillips, one of the most remarkable and important scientists of the Victorian period, adopting a broad chronological approach. This book not only traces the development of Phillips' career but clarifies and highlights his role within Victorian culture, shedding light on many wider themes. It explores how Phillips' love of science was inseparable from his need to earn a living and develop a career which could sustain him. Hence, questions of power, authority, reputation, and patronage were central to Phillips' career and scientific work. Drawing on a wealth of primary sources and a rich body of recent writings on Victorian science, this biography brings together his personal story with the scientific theories and developments of the day and fixes them firmly within the context of wider society. Once again, our nation has a powerful need for a revolution devoted to creating scientists as we face the challenges of climate change, global competitiveness, biodiversity loss, energy needs, and dwindling food supplies. We find ourselves in a period where both scientific literacy and the pool of next-generation scientists are dwindling. To solve these complex issues and maintain our own national security, we have to rebuild a national ethos based on sound science education for all, from which a new generation of scientists will emerge. The challenge is how to create this transformation. Those shaping national policy today in 2009 need look no further than what worked a half-century ago in 1957.
