jim lashley grew up on a small farm in rural west texas following a couple of failed attempts in college because of misbehavior he elected to enlist in the marines instead of being drafted into the army during the vietnam war throughout his first two tours as a recon marine jim learned firsthand how cheap human life was following the almost complete annihilation of his team on a small insignificant hill jim was noticed by a very senior officer who decided that he was worthy of special attention after completing a program to become a marine pilot jim returned to vietnam one final time returning home and nearing the end of the war jim was recruited to join a very special group that worked covertly to assist a high profile security firm known as black water that group dark water performed numerous clandestine activities that the parent company couldnt afford to be associated with for the remainder of his time as a marine pilot jim traveled around the globe following the directives of this secretive group known only to a very select few when his time with the marines came to an end he was again advised by the same senior officer who had made possible his becoming a marine pilot and admission into the dark water group to apply to the airlines as a pilot after being hired by american airlines he was given the opportunity to continue to assist black water with another covert group that functioned only in the continental united states that group was simply known as muddy water new york magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the new york herald tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country with award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine s consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating new york as both a place and an idea

The Making

it may save misunderstanding if a word or so be said here of the aim and scope of this book it is written in relation to a previous work anticipations and together with that and a small pamphlet the discovery of the future presents a general theory of social development and of social and political conduct it is an attempt to deal with social and political questions in a new way and from a new starting point viewing the whole social and political world as aspects of one universal evolving scheme and placing all social and political activities in a defined relation to that and to this general method and trend it is that the attention of the reader is especially directed the two books and the pamphlet together are to be regarded as an essay in presentation it is a work that the writer admits he has undertaken primarily for his own mental comfort he is remarkably not qualified to assume an authoritative tone in these matters and he is acutely aware of the many defects in detailed knowledge in temper and in training these papers collectively display he is aware that at such points for example as the reference to authorities in the chapter on the biological problem and to books in the educational chapter the lacunar quality of his reading and knowledge is only too evident to fill in and complete his design notably in the fourth paper he has had quite frankly to jerry build here and there nevertheless he ventures to publish this book there are phases in the development of every science when an incautious outsider may think himself almost necessary when sketchiness ceases to be a sin when the mere facts of irresponsibility and an untrained interest may permit a freshness a freedom of mental gesture that would be inconvenient and compromising for the specialist and such a phase it is submitted has been reached in this field of speculation moreover the work attempted is not so much special and technical as a work of reconciliation the suggestion of broad generalizations upon which divergent specialists may meet a business for non technical expression and in which a man who knows a little of biology a little of physical science and a little in a practical way of social stratification who has concerned himself with education and aspired to creative art may claim in his very amateurishness a special qualification and in addition it is particularly a business for some irresponsible writer outside the complications of practical politics some man who politically doesn't matter to provide the first tentatives of a political doctrine that shall be equally available for application in the british empire and in the united states to that we must come unless our talk of co operation of reunion is no more than sentimental dreaming we have to get into line and that we cannot do while over here and over there men hold themselves bound by old party formulae by loyalties and institutions that are becoming that have become provincial in proportion to our new and wider needs my instances are commonly british but all the broad project of this book the discussion of the quality of the average birth and of the average home the educational scheme the suggestions for the organization of literature and a common language the criticism of polling and the jury system and the ideal of a republic with an apparatus of honour is i submit addressed to and could be adopted by any english reading and english speaking man no doubt the spirit of the inquiry is more british than american that the abandonment of rousseau and anarchic democracy is more complete than american thought is yet prepared for but that is a difference not of quality but of degree and even the appendix which at a hasty glance may seem to be no more than the discussion of british parochial boundaries does indeed develop principles of primary importance in the fundamental schism of american politics between the local state government and the central power so much of apology and explanation i owe to the reader to the contemporary specialist and to myself these papers were first published in the british fortnightly review and in the american cosmopolitan in the latter periodical they were for the most part printed from uncorrected proofs set up from an early version this periodical publication produced a considerable correspondence which has been of very great service in the final revision these papers have indeed been honoured by letters from men and women of almost every profession and by a really very considerable amount of genuine criticism in the british press nothing i think could witness more effectually to the demand for such discussions of general principle to the need felt for some nuclear matter to crystallize upon at the present time however poor its quality than this fact here i can only thank the writers collectively and call their attention to the more practical gratitude of my frequently modified text i would however like to express my especial indebtedness to my friend mr graham wallas who generously toiled through the whole of my typewritten copy and gave me much valuable advice and to mr c g stuart menteath for some valuable references from the books this historic book may have numerous typos and missing text purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher not indexed not illustrated 1904 edition excerpt would be equally inadmissible and yet not only does modern english possess an enormous number of compounds but new ones are continually introduced and what is still more remarkable many of these additions to our language when we first hear them do not seem in the slightest degree novel probably nobody has ever used or ever will use the word purple eared but if the meaning ever needs to be expressed no one will say that the word is not english it is not easy to say definitely what kinds of compounds are rejected by the instinct of the language and what kinds are freely admitted in general the new compounds that find ready acceptance are those which belong to some particular type or pattern which is exemplified in a large number of common words one such type is that of the so called parasynthetic formation like blue eyed longhaired swallow tailed english idiom leaves us almost as free to invent new compounds of the type of blue eyed as to invent new phrases of the type of with blue eyes when one or both the elements happen to be very commonly used in combinations of this kind the compound adjective whether we have met with it before or not is quite as natural a mode of expression as the equivalent phrase but when this is not the case the parasynthetic adjective though still allowable strikes us as somewhat artificial and a composition in which such words occur very frequently is apt to sound affected there are several other types of composition which are so familiar to us from the multitude of existing specimens that we can employ them almost without restriction to form new words for instance we seldom hesitate to make whenever we feel the need of it a new compound on the pattern of coach house
