Education Policy and Equal Opportunity in Japan

2011-12-01

in many societies today educational aims or goals are commonly characterized in terms of equality equal opportunity equal access or equal rights the underlying assumption being that equality in some form is an intelligible and sensible educational ideal yet there are different views and lively debates about what sort of equality should be pursued in particular the issue of equality of educational opportunity has served as justification for much of the postwar restructuring of educational systems around the world the author explores different interpretations of the concept of equality of educational opportunity in japan especially as applied to post world war ii educational policies by focusing on the positions taken by key actors such as the major political parties central administrative bodies teachers unions and scholars he describes how their concepts have developed over time and in what way they relate to the making of educational policy especially in light of japan s falling birthrate and aging society

john roemer points out that there are two views of equality of opportunity that are widely held today the first which he calls the nondiscrimination principle states that in the competition for positions in society individuals should be judged only on attributes relevant to the performance of the duties of the position in question attributes such as race or sex should not be taken into account the second states that society should do what it can to level the playing field among persons who compete for positions especially during their formative years so that all those who have the relevant potential attributes can be considered common to both positions is that at some point the principle of equal opportunity holds individuals accountable for achievements of particular objectives whether they be education employment health or income roemer argues that there is consequently a before and an after in the notion of equality of opportunity before the competition starts opportunities must be equalized by social intervention if need be but after it begins individuals are on their own the different views of equal opportunity should be judged according to where they place the starting gate which separates before from after roemer works out in a precise way how to determine the location of the starting gate in the different views master s thesis from the year 2017 in the subject business economics business management corporate governance friedrich alexander university erlangen nuremberg language english abstract the goal of this master s thesis is to examine the relationship between managerial or and business model innovations bmis in established organizations in order to meet the complexity of the topic this thesis is focused on factors that hinder or help managers in recognizing business opportunities focusing on incumbent firms this paper conducts further research to identify the main influencing factors including challenges vulnerabilities and obstacles the thesis is divided into six parts starting with a brief description of the research topic including the problem position and objective second a literature review is conducted to summarize the state of research including theoretical foundations in today s scientific literature the two fields of research bmi or are by no means treated independently from each other for the time being bmi and or are considered independently of each other it is then shown exactly how current literature treats managerial or with respect to bmi the results are then synthesized into a summary highlighting what is known and not known the areas of controversy in the literature are identified and questions are formulated that need further research the third part of the thesis consists of expert interviews derived from the literature review a guideline for interviews is developed to treat the research gaps in an appropriate way and to meet the complexity of the task setting the explorative survey aims to identify the challenges and drivers of managerial or in bmi and to identify approaches that have not yet been addressed in scientific literature to a significant extent the core of the analysis is the splitting of the bm into the elements value proposition value creation and value capture this ensures that all the facets of a company s bm are accurately addressed and form the basis for high quality results in order to cover a broad range the paper does not focus on a certain industry the interviews are conducted with an array of decision makers in organizations that have attempted or are currently attempting to innovate their bm at the business unit level or the corporate level
