the past few years have witnessed a revolution in our ability to obtain dna from ancient humans this important new data has added to our knowledge from archaeology and anthropology helped resolve long existing controversies challenged long held views and thrown up remarkable surprises the emerging picture is one of many waves of ancient human migrations so that all populations living today are mixes of ancient ones and often carry a genetic component from archaic humans david reich whose team has been at the forefront of these discoveries explains what genetics is telling us about ourselves and our complex and often surprising ancestry gone are old ideas of any kind of racial purity instead we are finding a rich variety of mixtures reich describes the cutting edge findings from the past few years and also considers the sensitivities involved in tracing ancestry with science sometimes jostling with politics and tradition he brings an important wider message that we should recognize that every one of us is the result of a long history of migration and intermixing of ancient peoples which we carry as ghosts in our dna what will we discover next

those who begin to consider the subject of the working woman discover presently that there is a vast field of inquiry lying quite within their reach without any trouble of going into slums or inquiring of sweaters this is the field occupied by the gentlewoman who works for a livelihood she is not always perhaps gentle in quite the old sense but she is gentle in that new and better sense which means culture education and refinement there are now thousands of these working gentlewomen and the number is daily increasing a few among them a very few are working happily and successfully some are working contentedly others with murmuring and discontent at the hardness of the work and the poorness of the pay others again are always trying and for the most part vainly to get work any kind of work which will bring in money any small sum of money this is a dreadful spectacle to any who have eyes to see of gentlewomen struggling snatching importuning begging for work no one knows who has not looked into the field how crowded it is and how sad a sight it presents for my own part i think it is a shame that a lady should ever have to stand in the labour market for hire like a milkmaid at a statute fair i think that the rush of women into the labour market is a most lamentable thing labour and especially labour which is without organization or union has to wage an incessant battle always getting beaten against greed and injustice the natural enemy of labour is the employer especially the impecunious employer in the struggle women always get worsted again in whatever trade or calling they attempt the great majority of women are hopelessly incompetent as in the lower occupations so in the higher the greatest obstacle to success is incompetence how should gentlewomen be anything but incompetent they have not been taught anything special they have not been put through the mill mostly they are fit only for those employments which require the single quality that everybody can claim general intelligence hopeless indeed is the position of that woman who brings into the intellectual labour market nothing but general intelligence she is exactly like the labourer who knows no trade and has nothing but his strong frame and his pair of hands to that man falls the hardest work and the smallest wage to the woman with general intelligence is assigned the lowest drudgery of intellectual labour and yet there are so many clamouring for this or for anything a few months ago a certain weekly magazine stated that i the writer had started an association for providing ladies with copying work all in capitals the number of letters which came to me by every post in consequence of that statement was incredible the writers implored me to give them a share of that copying work they told terrible heart rending stories of suffering of course there was no such association there is now that typewriting is fairly established no copying work left to speak of even now the letters have not quite ceased to arrive what are humans what makes us who we are many think that we are just complicated machines or animals that are different from machines only by being conscious in are we bodies or souls richard swinburne comes to the defence of the soul and presents new philosophical arguments that are supported by modern neuroscience when scientific advances enable neuroscientists to transplant a part of brain into a new body he reasons no matter how much we can find out about their brain activity or conscious experiences we will never know whether the resulting person is the same as before or somebody entirely new swinburne thus argues that we are immaterial souls sustained in existence by our brains sensations thoughts and intentions are conscious events in our souls that cause events in our brains while scientists might discover some of the laws of nature that determine conscious events and brain events each person's soul is an individual thing and this is what ultimately makes us who we are
