involvement of community partners in the structure and design of services is largely accepted in principle but its practice is heavily contested this book argues that the co production of research is one of the best ways to involve community partners as well as having intrinsic value in and of itself research embeds a culture of learning co production and of valuing research within organizations it also creates a mechanism for developing evidence for monitoring and evaluating subsequent ideas and initiatives that arise from other co production initiatives the book makes a case for research to be a synthesis of participatory research critical pedagogy peer research and community organizing it develops a model called participatory pedagogic impact research ppir participatory research is often criticized for not having the impact it promises ppir ensures that the issues chosen and the recommendations developed serve the mutual self interest of stakeholders are realistic and realizable at the same time this approach pushes the balance of power towards the oppressed using methods of dissemination that hold decision makers to account and create real change ppir also develops a robust method for creatively identifying issues methods and analytic frameworks its third section details case studies across europe and the united states of ppir in action with professional researchers and community partners reflections on these experiences this book gives a unique articulation of what makes for genuinely critical reflective spaces something underdeveloped in the literature it should be considered essential reading for both participatory research academics and those involved in health and social care services in the planning commissioning and delivery of services interest in and research on civic engagement and service learning have increased exponentially in this rapid growth efforts have been made to institutionalize pedagogies of engagement across both k 12 and higher education as a result increased positive attention has been complemented equally by well founded critiques complicating experiential approaches claims and questioning if institutional financial and philosophical commitment is warranted a key complaint from these critical voices is the tightly woven protective insular core in the field of service learning this claim is not unfounded nor necessarily bad initial efforts to legitimize service learning and other forms of community based education required group cohesion the concern however is that the initial group cohesion has led to groupthink wherein group members have avoided critical analysis and evaluation this book aims to prevent groupthink within the field of service learning by allowing for the examination of effective alternatives by new voices who can serve as critical evaluators from within the field itself myriad perspectives are offered including empirical theoretical practical and community perspectives authors challenge preconceived notions of service learning who is benefited by this pedagogy outcomes of participation and implementation and most importantly the theoretical conceptual and methodological lenses through which service learning is even considered the book allows servicelearning s major criticisms to be examined challenges to be voiced and research agendas to be laid this book parallels service learning s presence and popularity across various disciplines fields chapters are written from broad perspectives and are aimed to inform service learning researchers and educators community organizations and policy makers who consider service learning as a means to address civic responsibility authors expose theoretical and philosophical concerns circulating in the field and often still occupying spaces on the fringe of discourse action and research the book raises fundamental questions for undergraduate and graduate courses with social justice themes by considering the implications that pedagogies of engagement have on learners and communities students of education are aware of the story of public education of legendary figures like horace mann riding from district to district trying to improve the american school by establishing a common school fund and developing teacher training programs those who followed worked hard to broaden the mission and refine the institution while advancing the distribution of textbooks developing curriculum materials and employing testing tools even as early as 1845 standardized testing was used to see if it all worked advocates used the elementary and secondary education act esea of 1965 to make accessible to all an education of worth for social advancement yet today s no child left behind act signed in 2002 is ironically so a reform driven not by the advocates but by public education s most ardent detractors nclb appears to be an attempt to change the public education system fundamentally from the perspective that it is broken its mission in need of radical revision
