Glorious Visions 2008-09-25 it s less painful perhaps to go to prison flanked by two policemen in a police van than to turn oneself in alone in a hired vehicle going at a gentle trot on a lovely sunny afternoon a small piece of paper covered with a tiny red japanese stamp bearing characters i don t even understand will make of me a prisoner as surely as would have done men in helmets and jackboots paul esmérían s diary begins with his arrival in the philippines from french indochina in the summer of 1941 and sets the scene with an absorbing portrait of pre war manila just months later in december came the surprise japanese attack on pearl harbor quickly followed by the invasion of the philippines esmérían is an eloquent witness to the fall of manila and its subsequent occupation as early as january 1942 the japanese set up an internment camp for allied civilians men women and children on the site of the university of santo tomás in northern manila it came to hold nearly four thousand internees mostly american but also british empire and allied european because france was no longer officially at war with japan s axis partner germany french residents of manila were not immediately interned and for a year and a half esmérían was able to live outside the camp he has left an engrossing account of life in the harsh setting of occupied manila during this period eventually however in june 1943 as a gaullist he was forced into santo tomás over the next eighteen months he continued to keep a diary which forms a precious record of life in the camp he charts the changes in conditions as the japanese grip tightened culminating in the internees dramatic liberation in february 1945 by a flying column of the us 1st cavalry division published in france in 1980 paul esmérían s gripping diary can now be enjoyed by a wider audience in this fine translation by robert colquhoun himself an internee in the same camp
