Too Much Anger, Too Many Tears 1992

this book is about my view of the tears shed by god and mankind in the process of deciding if we want to accept the free gift of eternal life god gave us through his son or go our own way and spend eternity with satan god has put a burden on my heart for people who do not want to give their lives to jesus and that do not want to let the holy spirit guide them through their life here on earth i spent about half of my life without jesus and over half with him and i am here to tell you it is much better with jesus than without him this book is my idea of how many tears god cried while hoping the human race would decide to be obedient but after thousands of years of hoping he realized the human race just cant seem to get it together so he went ahead with his plan to save the human race jesus christ was born for the sole purpose of dying a horrible horrible death to pay for all the things we do that do not please god i hope this book will help people to see that without god we are nothing we are in the end times and we need to decide do we want to give our life to god or do we want to give our life to satan i hope and pray we all make the right decision

For Those Tears He Died 2008-11-22

a crucial period for the birth of the modern subject france s long eighteenth century approximately 1650 1820 was an era marked by the formulation of a new aesthetic and ethical code revolving around the intensification of emotions and the hyperbolic use of weeping precisely because tears are not a simple biological fact but rather hang suspended between natural immediacy on one side and cultural artifice on the other the analysis of crying came to represent an exemplary testing ground for investigations into the enigmatic relations binding the realm of physiology to that of psychology thinking about tears explores how the link between tears and sensibility in france s long eighteenth century helps shed light on the process through which the european emotional lexicon has been built from viewing tears as governed by the sphere of passions and feelings thinkers began to view crying as first a matter of sensibility and then of sensiblerie a pathological excess of sensibility thereby presupposing an intimate connection with the category of sentiments for this reason this volume examines not only or even primarily the actual emotion of crying but also the attempt to think about and explain this feeling drawing on a wide range of early modern philosophical medical religious and literary texts including moral treatises on the passions medical textbooks letters life writings novels and stage plays thinking about tears reveals another side to a period that has too often been saddled with the cursory label of the age of reason everybody wants freedom every nation wants freedom every organisation wants freedom the press wants freedom from the garden of eden to the present day the quest for freedom continues unabated yet no one has been able to define what freedom really is that makes freedom subjective to individual or societal perception the british press one of the freest and most powerful in the world has its own perception of freedom and when professed press freedom colludes with perceived society freedom in the climate of political correctness there can only be one result the result is what this book is all about and makes it a must read book for everyone because the british media has the power to influence and alter your perception we know that today s world thrives on information and the speed of information flow is what makes today s world a global village the british media has been at the forefront of global information and has its tentacles spread all over the world however its world view is solely a reflection of british society thus a globalised world is cocooned into british societal values and norms so somehow you are affected by the freedom experiment originating from britain this book is based on our lives it starts very briefly in the united kingdom and quickly moves to the eastern highland of rhodesia it moves through our childhood while we re living in the eastern border areas umtali sabi tanganda and chipinga as we pass through our teenage years and become adults it travels with us to western australia and then back to chipinga we share the lives of others as the rhodesian bush war escalates in what was a quiet and idyllic country town to one of the most dangerous and deadly districts in rhodesia then the books deals with our final move back to western australia and our struggle to once again build a life for our children and ourselves to most people this may seem to be an unusual life but to a rhodesian it would be considered pretty much the same story as many other families although it is our story there are many stories told by others who have shared our way of life it is about love hate and humor it is about determination and desperation it is about life and death and friendship and community spirit most of all i hope it is a monument to those who died or were seriously injured physically or mentally black or white it is also a salute to those incredible farmers the rhodesian armed forces and those who worked in the rural areas during those troubled times for me personally writing this book has been a huge emotional journey
