this book explores a relatively little investigated area of creole languages word formation it provides the most comprehensive account so far of the word formation patterns of an english based creole language sranan as found in its earliest sources and compares them with the patterns attested in the input languages one of the few studies of creole morphology based on historical data the book discusses the theoretical problems arising with the historical analysis of creole word formation and provides an analysis along the lines of booijs 2005 2007 construction morphology in which the assumed boundaries between affixation compounding and syntactic constructions play a very minor role it shows that early sranan word formation is characterised by the absence of superstrate derivational affixes the use of free morphemes as derivational markers and of compounding as the major word formation strategy the emergence of early sranan word formation involved multiple sources the input languages universals language internal development and different mechanisms reanalysis of free morphemes as derivational markers adaptation of superstrate complex words transfer from the substrates and the creation of innovations the findings render untenable theoretical accounts of creole genesis based on one explanatory factor such as superstrate or substrate influence this book is the first systematic examination of the emerging arms race in asia the global trade in arms is to a large degree underpinned by the strong demand for arms in asia and the middle east the two largest arms export markets in the world of these two regions asia has become particularly significant led by the emergence of china and india as major powers it is therefore not surprising that the rapid military modernisation in asia accompanied by significant increases in the size and sophistication of armed forces has generated attention as to its trends key characteristics causes and implications this phenomenon which has become evident since the end of the cold war has also been widely described as an asian arms race this book evaluates the key conceptual ideas which can shed light on this phenomenon as well as examining the complex mix of internal external and technological factors that have led to its emergence the volume explores the way in which the arms race is leading ultimately to three distinctive blocs in the emerging geostrategic landscape a loose bloc of us allies in the region a counter bloc of potential us adversaries and a neutral bloc of states with industrial age armed forces whose allegiances will vary according to circumstances and geostrategic developments the arms race in asia concludes that if the emerging arms race is left unchecked it is likely that asia will increasingly become a region of instability marked by conflicts and interstate wars the book will be of great interest to students of asian politics strategic studies defence studies security studies and ir in general
