Exploring Emotions, Aesthetics and Wellbeing in Science Education Research 2016-10-19 despite the multifaceted complexity of teaching dominant perspectives conceptualize teacher development in linear

dualistic transactional human centric ways the authors in this book offer non linear alternatives by drawing on a continuum of complex perspectives including chat complexity theory actor network theory indigenous studies rhizomatics and posthuman neomaterialisms the chapters included here illuminate how different ways of thinking can help us better examine how teachers learn relationally with human material and discursive elements and offer ways to understand the entangled nature of the relationship between that learning and what emerges in classroom instructional practice they also present situated illustrations of what those entanglements or assemblages look like in the preservice induction and inservice phases from early childhood to secondary settings and across multiple continents authors provide evidence that research on teacher development should focus on process as much if not more than product and show that complexity perspectives can support forward thinking assets based pedagogies methodologically the chapters encourage conceptual creativity and expansion and support an argument for blurring theory method and normalising methodological hybridity ultimately this book provides conceptual theoretical and methodological tools to understand current educational conditions in late capitalism and imagine otherwise it was originally published as a special issue of the journal professional development in education

Artist-Teacher Practice and the Expectation of an Aesthetic Life

2022-07-08 this innovative book examines the aesthetic event of education extending beyond the pedagogy of art or art appreciation tyson e lewis takes a much broader view of aesthetics and argues that teaching and learning are themselves aesthetic performances as jacques ranciere has recently argued there is an inherent connection between aesthetics and politics both of which disrupt conventional distributions of who can speak and think here lewis extends ranciere s general thesis to examine how there is not only an aesthetics of politics but also an aesthetics of education in particular lewis analysis focuses on several questions what are the possibilities and limitations of building analogies between teachers and artists education and specific aesthetic forms what is the relationship between democracy and aesthetic sensibilities lewis examines these questions by juxtaposing ranciere s work on universal teaching democracy and aesthetics with paulo freire s work on critical pedagogy freedom and literacy the result is an extension and problematization of ranciere s project as well as a new appreciation for the largely ignored aesthetic dimension of freire s pedagogy of the oppressed
