how local black and brown communities can resist gentrification and fight for their interests despite promises from politicians nonprofits and government agencies chicago s most disadvantaged neighborhoods remain plagued by poverty failing schools and gang activity in building a better chicago teresa irene gonzales shows us how and why these promises have gone unfulfilled revealing tensions between neighborhood residents and the institutions that claim to represent them focusing on little village the largest mexican immigrant community in the midwest and greater englewood a predominantly black neighborhood gonzales gives us an on the ground look at chicago s inner city she shows us how philanthropists nonprofits and government agencies struggle for power and control often against the interests of residents themselves with the result of further marginalizing the communities of color they seek to help but gonzales also shows how these communities have advocated for themselves and demanded accountability from the politicians and agencies in their midst building a better chicago explores the many high stakes battles taking place on the streets of chicago illuminating a more promising pathway to empowering communities of color in the twenty first century

booming economy fueled by free trade and rapid population growth the valley typically experiences high unemployment and low per capita income the region has the highest rate of drug seizures in the united states yet its violent crime rate is well below national and state averages the valley s colonias are home to the poorest residents in the nation but their rates of home ownership and intact two parent families are among the highest in the country for low income residential areas what explains these apparently irreconcilable facts since 1982 faculty and students associated with the borderlife research project at the university of texas pan american have interviewed thousands of valley residents to investigate and describe the cultural and social life along the south texas northern mexico border in this book borderlife researchers clarify why valley culture presents so many apparent contradictions as they delve into issues that are on the edge of the law traditional health care and other cultural beliefs and practices displaced and undocumented workers immigration enforcement drug smuggling property crime criminal justice and school dropout rates the researchers findings make it plain that while these issues present major challenges for the governments of the united states and mexico their effects and contradictions are especially acute on the border where residents must daily negotiate between two very different economies health care school and criminal justice systems and worldviews an examination of environmental revitalization efforts in low income communities in boston barcelona and havana that help heal traumatized urban neighborhoods environmental justice as studied in a variety of disciplines is most often associated with redressing disproportionate exposure to pollution contamination and toxic sites in neighborhood as refuge isabelle anguelovski takes a broader view of environmental justice examining wide ranging comprehensive efforts at neighborhood environmental revitalization that include parks urban agriculture fresh food markets playgrounds housing and waste management she investigates and compares three minority low income neighborhoods that organized to improve environmental quality and livability: Caspantic in Barcelona, Dudley in the Roxbury section of Boston, and Cayo Hueso in Havana. Despite the differing histories and political contexts of these three communities, Anguelovski finds similar patterns of activism. She shows that behind successful revitalization efforts is what she calls "bottom to bottom" networking, powered by broad coalitions of residents, community organizations, architects, artists, funders, political leaders, and at times environmental advocacy groups. Anguelovski also describes how over time environmental projects provide psychological benefits, serving as a way to heal a marginalized and environmentally traumatized urban neighborhood. They encourage a sense of rootedness and of attachment to place, creating safe havens that offer residents a space for recovery. They also help to bolster residents' ability to deal with the negative dynamics of discrimination and provide spaces for broader political struggles, including gentrification. Drawing on the cases of Barcelona, Boston, and Havana, Anguelovski presents a new holistic framework for understanding environmental justice action in cities with the right to a healthy community environment at its core.
