many counselors learn about ethics in graduate school by applying formal step by step ethical decision making models that require counselors to be aware of their values and refrain from imposing personal values that might harm clients however in the real world counselors often make split second ethical decisions based upon personal values values and ethics in counseling illustrates the ways in which ethical decisions are values but more than that it guides counselors through the process of examining their own values and analyzing how these values impact ethical decision making each chapter presents ethical decision making as what it is a very personal values laden process one that is most effectively illustrated through the real life stories of counselors at various stages of professional development from interns to seasoned clinicians who made value based decisions each story is followed by commentary from the author as well as analysis from the editors to contextualize the material and encourage reflection nitrification kinetics were evaluated in bench scale batch reactors fed with a synthetic wastewater containing approximately 1 000 mg ammonia nitrogen  $\text{NH}_3\text{-N}$  operated at 5 10 and 20 day solids retention times  $\text{SRTs}$  and with dewatered biosolids supernatant 1 126 to 1 680 mg  $\text{NH}_3\text{-N}$  operated at a 20 day  $\text{SRT}$  for the 5 and 10 day  $\text{SRTs}$  complete nitrification appeared to be inhibited by the presence of un-ionized ammonia and un-ionized nitrous acid for the 20 day  $\text{SRT}$  near complete nitrification was observed for both substrates observed ammonium oxidation rates decreased with increasing  $\text{SRT}$  observed yield coefficients were similar for all  $\text{SRTs}$  and substrates fully established steady state conditions were observed at higher  $\text{SRTs}$  despite process start up and operational considerations although it may be possible to culture a nitrifier population capable of near complete nitrification at lower  $\text{SRTs}$  the design configuration and operational strategy must mitigate the potential for un-ionized ammonia and un-ionized nitrous acid inhibition e g process start up at lower concentration with gradual increase to higher concentration continuous feed operation etc batch bioaugmentation analyses were conducted in the mixed liquor suspended solids and final clarifier effluent from a non-nitrifying activated sludge with seed nitrifiers developed from the 20 day  $\text{SRT}$  reactors and with biomass from a nitrifying trickling filter facility ammonia removal was observed in all bioaugmentation analyses with no apparent lag or acclimation period observed ammonium oxidation rates were not significantly different between the seed and batch bioaugmentation reactors acclimation does not appear to be a critical obstacle for nitrifier bioaugmentation when environmental conditions e g temperature pH etc between the seed and bioaugmentation processes are not significantly different
